Forecast For Strathclyde
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Wednesday 28 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
North unsettled with rain, brighter with a few showers elsewhere.

Today:
The north will stay mostly cloudy with some rain at times, perhaps heavy and persistent across northern Argyll. Damp start across the Central Belt and south, brighter with a few showers by the afternoon. Maximum temperature 19 deg C (66 deg F).

Tonight:
Argyll staying cloudy with some rain at times, turning drier in the west later. Becoming mainly dry across the Central Belt and south, chance of a shower later. Minimum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Thursday:
Showery rain in a few places at first. Otherwise becoming mostly dry, some warm sunshine breaking through in the Central Belt and south at times, rather cloudy elsewhere. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Chance of the odd shower in the south on Friday, otherwise a mainly dry few days, some spells of sunshine developing over the weekend.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.